The Fallen Leaves.

BY MRS. NORTON. We stand among the fallen leaves, Young children at our play, And laugh to see the yellow things Go rustling on their way ; Right merrily we hunt them down, The autumn winds and we, Nor pause to gaze where snow-drifts lie,

Or sunbeams gild the tree : With dancing feet we leap along Where wither'd boughs are strown; Nor past nor future checks our song-The present is our own.

We stand among the fallen leaves In youth's enchanted spring-When hope (who wearies at the last) First spreads her eagle wing, We tread with steps of conscious strength Beneath the leafless trees,

And the color kindles in our cheek As blows the winter breeze; While gazing onward the cold gray sky, Clouded with snow and ruin, We wish the old year all past by, And the young spring come again.

We stand among the fallen leaves In manhood's haughty prime-When first our pausing hearts begin To love "the olden time;" And as we gaze, we sigh to think How many a year bath pass'd

Since 'neath those cold and laded trees,

Our footsteps wander'd last; And old companions-now perchance Estranged, forgot, or dead-Come round us, as though autumn leaves Are crush'd beneath our tread.

We stand among the fallen leaves In our own autumn day-And, tottering on with feeble steps, Pursue our cheerless way. We look not back-too long ago Hath all we loved been lost; Nor forward-for we may not live

To see our new hopes cross'd: But on we go-the sun's faint beam A feeble warmth imparts-Childhood without its joy returns-The present fills our hearts!

DAYS WITHOUT NIGHTS-NIGHTS WITHOUT DAYS. -"There is nothing," says Dr. Baird, "that strikes a stranger more forcibly, if he visits Sweden at a season of the year when the days are the longest, than the absence of night." Dr. Baird had no conception of it before his arrival.
